1) Allocate funding for document translation and analysis from foreign studies and programs already underway and long since implemented. Example: Hokkaido Fisheries Institute programs are two decades ahead of California in many areas. 2) Focus on what programs and policies work, and not on why they work. In times of underfunding, we need results. 3) require All storm runoff undergo primary treatment. 4) require all sewage treatment plants flowing into the ocean utilize secondary treatment. Just extending the pipes is not an acceptable solution. 5) Slow down the policy implementation from geo spatial modeling. Too much and too many assumptions are inaccurate because of underfunding, and to undo mistakes can be quite expensive and prohibitive.
