RE: Support Updating the California Eelgrass Mitigation Policy and Prioritize Eelgrass Conservation

Dear Secretary Crowfoot,

As leaders of non-governmental organizations with a focus on marine conservation, our mission statements are inextricably linked to the health of California's coastal and ocean resources. Our magnificent coast and ocean supports billions of dollars in economic activity and will be a key factor in our state's economic recovery. At the same time, we must also take strong action to help coastal communities adapt to the impacts of climate change. Protecting submerged aquatic vegetation including our approximately 12,000 acres of existing eelgrass (Zostera marina) is a cost-effective action that serves both these essential goals.

For these reasons, we are asking you to make eelgrass conservation a top priority. Specifically, we encourage your office to direct California's natural resource agencies to engage with and support the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's National Marine Fisheries Service (NOAA Fisheries) in its review and update of the California Eelgrass Mitigation Policy (CEMP).

The CEMP, issued in 2014, is California's primary tool for protecting this foundational habitat and has had substantial positive results on the ground. The CEMP has provided critical policy and technical guidance for local, state, and federal agencies reviewing project permits under state and federal law and regulations. The CEMP has ensured that many projects first avoid, then minimize, and finally mitigate any adverse impact to eelgrass. This is important because California's approximately 12,000 acres of eelgrass provides dozens of ecosystem services. It cleans our waters, nurtures commercially and recreationally important fish including salmon, Dungeness crab and groundfish, supports forage fish such as Pacific herring, provides food and shelter for invertebrates, birds, and marine mammals, reduces ocean acidification, sequesters carbon, and helps buffer the coastline from sea level rise and storm surges. In fact, eelgrass receives the highest level of recognition under our federal fisheries law as a Habitat Area of Particular Concern. In California, increased understanding and concern about eelgrass since the publication of the CEMP in 2014 has led to several major legislative and administrative initiatives over the past five years that have a focus on the protection, restoration and understanding of eelgrass in California.

Unfortunately this versatile seagrass, found in estuaries, bays, and other shallow nearshore areas, is disappearing because of pollution, dredging, development, sea level rise and other impacts. Approximately 30 percent of the world's seagrass has been lost since the 1870s. Globally, we're losing an area of eelgrass that would cover two football fields every hour. On the West Coast, eelgrass in California's Morro Bay has declined by more than 90 percent since 2007. Yet, eelgrass in California has proven resilient in many areas, and shows the capacity to flourish in higher temperatures and withstand other aspects of climate change. With a stronger CEMP, we can better support this vital coastal habitat into the future.

This year, NMFS has begun a five-year review of the CEMP with the intention of producing a revised policy that incorporates the latest scientific knowledge and lessons learned over the past five years of its application in California. An updated CEMP that reflects the best available science regarding eelgrass protection, restoration, ecosystem services, and blue carbon potential is essential to achieving California's conservation goals. We respectfully urge you to direct California's natural resource agencies to work with NOAA Fisheries to promptly conduct the five-year review and update of the CEMP to ensure that our state's eelgrass resources are protected and can continue to support healthy ecosystems and communities into the future. Our organizations, and other individuals who care deeply about California's coast are eager to support the CEMP review process in any way that we can.

Thank you for your time, consideration, and commitment to protecting California's coastal and marine resources.

Sincerely,

RE: Please protect eelgrass and other submerged aquatic vegetation

Dear Secretary Crowfoot,

The Pew Charitable Trusts is submitting public comment on behalf of 1,558 advocates in support of lasting protection and conservation in California for eelgrass and other submerged aquatic vegetation. The original letter was addressed to Governor Newsom but is also relevant to the California Natural Resources Agency and California Ocean Protection Council.

Thank you for your time and consideration. We appreciate the opportunity to work with you to maintain healthy coastal and ocean ecosystems.

Sincerely,

Steve Marx

Please protect eelgrass and other submerged aquatic vegetation

Dear Governor Newsom:

Finding solutions to help California's coastal communities, fish, and wildlife means protecting vital habitats, including eelgrass and other submerged aquatic vegetation (SAV). These ocean plants provide crucial nursery habitat for Dungeness crabs, salmon, halibut, and other animals that boost coastal economies.

Eelgrass beds in California's estuaries also provide an array of other benefits to our coastal communities. For example, SAV such as eelgrass absorbs carbon and methane and stores these greenhouse gases, helping to reduce the effects of climate change. And by pulling carbon dioxide out of the water during photosynthesis, eelgrass acts as a local buffer against ocean acidification, which is harmful to shellfish and other important coastal resources.

Please ensure that eelgrass and other SAV have the management and protection that match their importance to our coast. This should include the following:

1. Direct California's natural resource agencies to coordinate with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration on a substantive review and update of the California Eelgrass Mitigation Policy.
2. Prioritize policies that do better than "no net loss" of habitats or ecosystem function, found in many current management processes. The urgency of the issue requires acting for the near- and long-term recovery of damaged coastal ecosystems.
3. Direct coastal jurisdictions to update local coast plans to address protection of eelgrass and other SAV. Many of these plans are outdated and insufficient for addressing the issues facing communities.
4. Identify potential protective zones (designations) within estuaries to conserve eelgrass and other SAV, include eelgrass as an environmentally sensitive habitat area under California's Coastal Act, and add eelgrass-dependent species as California species of special concern.

Thank you again for your time and attention. I look forward to strong protections for eelgrass to benefit coastal communities and our treasured wildlife.

Sincerely,

We the undersigned.
